

My Body Hurts

Sofi Tukker

I woke up late, my dreams were loud
They settled down into the kitchen then I win 'em back to bed
I tried to rest, the dreams came back
I couldn't learn all of the lessons that I knew I could've had
And once I started, started to think
I got tossed inside a tumbleweed, a many-headed thing
So I'm here on the other side
Feeling fucked up and bridled inside my own mind
My body hurts
I'm overwhelmed
I complain because I want to and it feels so good to yell
I'm overtired, I overfought
My brain is tired, too much work
No gain and too much thought
I'm still fucked up
I'm still in pain
I throw my clothes against the wall
I hold myself like I'm insane
I let it out, I've gotten loud
I feel a little bit better now
My body aches
I'm overwhelmed
It feels so good to yell
My body hurts
I'm overwhelmed
I complain because I want to and it feels so good to yell
I'm overtired, I overfought
My brain is tired, too much work
No gain and too much thought
