

You and Me Both

The Classic Crime

The guardrail is tempting me
Standing like a sentry to the left of me It's guarding adventure that certain's to be life threatening, life threatening I need a tragedy to wake me from perpetual dreaming
the proverbial "pinch me"
I'm so sick of sleeping
I'm so sick of sleeping And you wonder why my eyes don't leave my phone
(Oh whoa oh oh)
It's no wonder that you feel like you're alone, alone
I think I need a new story
One where I take on the world
The one I'm living is boring
It's killing you and me both
The car crash in front of me
Pulls me back from deep and desperate fantasy
Snaps me wide awake to see the horrible scene
What's happening?
What's happening? Is this the tragedy I asked for?
Is this blood on my hands a consequence of my own war?
I'm so sick of sleeping
I'm so sick of needing more And you wonder why my eyes don't leave my phone
(Oh whoa oh oh)
It's no wonder that you feel like you're alone, alone
I think I need a new story
One where I take on the world
The one I'm living is boring
It's killing you and me both
And you watch every time
As I give myself to death and neglect life
And I blindly desert the plot line you deserve And you wonder why my eyes don't leave my phone
(Oh whoa oh oh oh)
It's no wonder that you feel like you're alone, alone
I think I need a new story
One where I take on the world
The one I'm living is boring
It's killing you and me both
It's killing you and me both
IT'S KILLING YOU AND ME BOTH!
