

Time Became the Tide

Blancmange

How time became the tide and turned again, again
And washed onto a thousand beaches How time became the tide and touched and turned You touched and turned me, inside out! And a dried out shell can never show The horrors that you bring to me in, deathtrap so fun! How time became the tide, each day you leave me standing still and still, the dried out shell And dragged into a careless life with nothing else to do waves don't often mean their anger I can only wait so long
I can only wait so long
I can only wait so long
so long, farewell
How time became the tide, calm, it creeps, it slides, in yards each day
So long, farewell
How time became the tide, and when you're calm you miss me Angry, I stand to lose you How time became the tide, at time I bare the pain waves don't often mean their anger
