

Strange Life

Tickle Me Pink

I can hardly remember, the days when I felt free
Never searching, cuz it all made sense to me
I will always remember, that point when I found out
All my own plans may never come around
Still we go on, never asking why I can feel this strange life, leading to a great life
Where everything begins, where everything makes sense
Somebody take this fake life, save me from this plain life
So everything begins, so everything makes sense
And nothing ever ends
I went further to find her, then I ever thought I would Looking for answers, she always said I could Then I knew something was missing, by the way she said my name
But my own plans couldn't keep her, cuz it doesn't work that way
Still we go on, never asking why I can feel this strange life, leading to a great life
Where everything begins, where everything makes sense
Somebody take this fake life, save me from this plain life
So everything begins, so everything makes sense
If nothing ever is, I know some things got to give I can feel this strange life, leading to a great life
Where everything begins, where everything makes sense
I can feel this strange life, leading to a great life
Where everything begins, where everything makes sense
Somebody take this fake life, save me from this plain life
So everything begins, so everything makes sense
And nothing ever ends
