

Hush

Calexico

In the afternoon of orange blossom days
Hummingbirds rest above where we lay
 You say it's ok, no need to fret
 The weight of it all will ease as we find
 The balance in each step we make
Swinging back n' forth in a palo verde tree
The wind in the needles hushes you asleep
 Even with the strain, your heart remains
 Don't doubt why darlin'
In time you will find we're alright we were born
 Like the branch to bend and not to break
 Reconcile and resurrect, tombstone rose
Growing up and over the gates to where our children play
 The future wraps 'round like vines
 Inside these arms
Darlin' will you say in our final embrace
 Before returning 'neath the clay
 After all that your heart still remains
