

Acid Rain

Thomston

When you fell from the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to
Wash our clothes
And baby, we got soaked
When you fell from the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes
Drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water,
But you were just acid rain
There's a drought in California
Two weeks have turned into months, my dear
And I'd wait up all night for you
The minutes turn into fucking years
And I see it through a skylight from a mile away
A mile away
I replay all the highlights from a different state
A different state
When you fell from the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to
Wash our clothes
And baby, we got soaked
When you fell from the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes
Drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water,
But you were just acid rain
I fill my cup from the tap
I let my sips overlap
I let the sink overflow
I drink it down 'til I'm bounced
And I feel like I can't be honest
About anything I wanted
'Cause you're haunting me with memories
Without even talking
And I pray
For a drought again
Yeah, I pray
For damaging it
Though when I'd give anything
To just take back the love I misplaced in you
When you fell from the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to
Wash our clothes
And baby, we got soaked

When you fell from the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes
Drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water,
But you were just acid rain I thought that you were holy water,
But you were just acid rain
I thought that you were holy water,
But you were just acid rain
