

Radio Girl

Volbeat

Oh radio girl play me that sweet heavenly song
Well it's saturday night and we all get into town
Broken by heartache but driven be her sound
Well a spell from the speakers was tearing my soul apart
Oh radio man would you please play that song
One day I know that I'll marry that girl
Come home, baby I know it, please dial me up
Alone I roam
Cause the drive-in is closing, the movies out of work
But the music is playing in my old Bett Betty Ford
Oh radio man would you please play that song
One day I know that I'll marry that girl
Come home, baby i know it, please dial me up
Alone I roam
Standing in the rain with one coin for a booth call
Oh Madelline, the station told my that
They didn't even know your name, for Helvede
Strolling to another city just to catch a song, oh
Madeline
The frequence is better
But I'm freezing on a parking lot, it never ends
Broken by heartache but driven be her sound
Well a spell from the speakers was tearing my soul apart
Oh radio man would you please play that song
One day I know that I'll marry that girl
Come home, baby I know it, please dial me up
Alone I roam
Strolling to another city just to catch a song, oh Madeline
The frequence is better
But I'm freezing on a parking lot, it never ends
