

Double Rainbow (feat. João Gilberto)

Stan Getz

Listen
The rain is falling on the roses
The fragrance drifts across the garden
Like the scent of some forgotten melody
This melody, belongs to you, belongs to me
Belongs to no one
See the way the crimson petals scatter when the wind blows
Ah! the secret sigh of love that suddenly the heart knows
See now a robin's there among the puddles
And hopping through the misty rain drops
He's come to tell us it is spring
Look at the double rainbow
The rain is silver in the sunlight
A fleeting fox is in the garden
Rain sweet lovin' mother rain
That soaks the earth that swells the streams
That cleans the sky and brings the blue
See how the jasmin tree is all in flower
The little brook of clever waters flows into a vast river
Ah! you belong to no one
Ah! you belong to no one
Ah! you belong to no one
Ah! you belong to no one
Ah! you belong to no one
