

My Indigo

My Indigo

I call what we have indigo
Unclear what we are, but what we know
And though you never take my hand, even when I raise your shipwreck from the sand
And though you never count the cost, of the innocence you've lost and what it meant
You don't have to love me
There's one thing you should know
My love will not unravel
It's unconditional
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
My indigo
Ink burns on the page, blue to black
But words are fireproof, can't take back
While the memory's alive, when there's pennies on our eyes we'll never rest
Can we take a second now, to rain down the heavy storm that's in our chest
You don't have to love me
There's one thing you should know
My love will not unravel
It's unconditional
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
My indigo
You don't have to love me
There's one thing you should know
My love will not unravel
It's unconditional
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
My indigo
(Even when the heart won't let me show, you don't have to say to let me know)
I call what we have indigo
