Even if you don't say anything

When I look into your eyes

I can feel your aching heart

Your deeply locked voice
Your shallow smile
Show me how long your day was I know you're smiling
Because you don't want me to know how tired you are I'm always here
Like the violet sunset that always comes
Even if my embrace is small, I'll hold you Every time you're not here
I feel your empty spot
The emptiness rises
The sound of the rain grows louder
But even when the rough wind blows
You become my wide shade I know you're smiling
Because you don't want to show any pain I'm always here
Like the violet sunset that always comes
Even if my embrace is small, I'll hold you Hello, I will hold you
Rest comfortably
