Rosi Golan

I love our silences more, more than the things we say Might have our differences but, deep down we're one and the same
But I've been burned so bad
can't help it if I pull away
When the world's on fire you kiss me and you say it'll be alright
Oh and the more I try to resist you the more I seem to slide, into the fire I'm tired of not trusting me, for trying to trust in you Must be so exhausting for you, questioning all that you do
But I've been burned so bad
can't help it if I pull away
When the world's on fire you kiss me and you say it'll be alright
You're dealing with it well, considering how,
How crazy it is, to carry on like this, when everything's so perfect
When the world's on fire you kiss me and you say it'll be alright
